English Day Celebrations at LBRCE

– A Grand Literary Fest

English Day was celebrated for the first time at LBRCE on April 23, 2025, under the aegis of Spoorthi, the Literary Club. The event marked a vibrant celebration of the English language and literature, aligning with World English Day, which commemorates the birth anniversary of William Shakespeare. The occasion was graced by the Principal and the Heads of various departments, whose presence added prestige to the celebrations. The English Department, along with the faculty coordinators, meticulously planned and guided the event, ensuring its grand success. A wide array of literary activities was organized to engage and inspire students. Events such as creative writing, English elocution, poem recitation, solo and group singing, and a display of famous Shakespearean quotations captured the essence of literary appreciation. Over 250 enthusiastic B.Tech first-year students participated in the competitions, showcasing their talent and creativity. One of the major highlights of the celebration was a captivating performance of The Merchant of Venice, Act 3, staged by a group of students. The enactment was met with admiration and applause from the audience, reflecting the students' dedication and dramatic flair. Another standout moment was the group singing segment, where all participants of the singing competition were formed into the LBRCE Choir. Their harmonious rendition of selected English songs was truly spellbinding and became the centrepiece of the day's celebrations. The event lasted for two hours and created an atmosphere of inspiration, enthusiasm, and joy. Students expressed great excitement and eagerness to contribute more creatively in the future. The success of the first-ever English Day at LBRCE marks a promising beginning for many more such literary celebrations in the years to come.
